

OSGOODE'S FULL-TIME GRADUATE DIPLOMA IN FOUNDATIONS OF CANADIAN LAW

Yanki Gur
LLM Student

Enter the Canadian legal market with confidence.

Gain the knowledge to succeed in your future academic and professional goals.

The Graduate Diploma in Foundations of Canadian Law is designed to provide students with an advanced understanding of the Canadian legal system. Delve into Canada's legal history and structure while developing your legal research and writing skills. The program focuses on the key areas of public and private law while providing a unique opportunity for you to specialize in your academic interests through elective courses.

“Osgoode’s Graduate Diploma in Foundations of Canadian Law is a new graduate diploma for students from outside of Canada who want to study or work in the Canadian legal market. Providing a robust foundation of knowledge in Canadian public and private law, the diploma will act as a bridge for those who want to pursue an LLM after completion.”

Shelley M. Kierstead
Professor, Osgoode Hall
Law School

“The Graduate Diploma in Foundations of Canadian Law gave me a very good foundation of the Canadian legal system. The intro courses helped me to see the Canadian legal system as a whole so it really made me more confident.”

Course and Course Descriptions

Canadian Legal Research and Analysis

This course is designed to familiarize students with core Canadian legal research and analytical skills. You will work extensively with the legal problem-solving skills required within a common law regime, becoming familiar with the research and reasoning skills that are required to conduct legislative, case law, and theoretical legal research and analysis. The primarily assignment-based nature of this part of the course requires a significant and “steady” time commitment.

Academic and Applied Legal Writing

This course is designed to familiarize students with core graduate-level legal academic writing skills. Students will learn the preferred style and organization of legal academic work products, as well as how to communicate legal analysis and critique in written form.

Introduction to Canadian Public Law

This course will introduce students to the Canadian legal system and Canadian public law. It is designed to provide a broad understanding of how the law operates in Canada and to present foundational concepts and doctrines that will enable students to pursue more detailed inquiries and studies into Canadian law. The course will enable students to understand and explain the general structure of the Canadian legal and political system, including the three branches of government and their relationship to one another; the role of constitutionalism in Canada; the three primary topics of Canadian constitutional law (federalism, civil liberties and Aboriginal and Indigenous rights); as well as the basic doctrines and applications of administrative law.

Introduction to Canadian Private Law

This course provides students with an introduction to private law in Canada, including Contracts, Torts, Property and Business Organizations. In addition to traditional style lectures, the course is designed for students to critically engage with the material through participation in class exercises.

Elective Courses

Students will take 6 credits in elective courses giving them the opportunity to study topics that are relevant to their academic and professional goals and interests.

Complete descriptions for the following sample electives are available on our website.

- Canadian Criminal Law [6 credits]
- Canadian Constitutional Law [6 credits]
- Business Associations [6 credits]
- Contract Law [6 credits]
- Family Law [6 credits]
- Real Estate Transactions [6 credits]
