Deepen your knowledge and expand your perspectives.

Broaden your horizons through Osgoode's Professional LLM in International Business Law by studying with a diverse set of students from across the globe. Award-winning faculty teach the latest developments in international trade law, international finance, international business transactions, taxation of cross-border transactions and other related topics. Study core international business law subjects and pursue other legal interests through Professional LLM elective courses.

“My classmates provided a very multicultural environment in class and out of it, and were happy to share their experiences and offer guidance. Since they were going through different stages of their careers themselves, the richness of their in-the-field experiences was outstanding.”

Program Format

The LLM in International Business Law admits students twice per year, in Fall and Winter. The degree requires completion of 36 credits including a research requirement.

Full-Time Studies | Attend courses in-person over one year (three terms).

Part-Time Studies | Complete the program over two years (six terms) and have the option to take courses either in-person or online through live video conferencing (see course schedules for details).

Required Course

Comparative Legal Studies in International Business [6 credits]

This course provides an overview of the classification and operation of major legal systems around the world. Starting with a review of legal traditions in Canada, students will be introduced to comparative legal methodology and will develop a strong understanding of civil law and common law systems, as well as other legal traditions. Students will develop a theoretical understanding of these systems and will examine some specific examples from countries that play a prominent role in the global economy. Issues important to international business transactions and disputes will be examined from a comparative perspective.

Sample International Business Law Electives

Students must complete at least 18 credits of International Business Law electives. Sample electives include:

International Commercial Arbitration [6 credits]

This course provides an in-depth introduction to the law and practice of international commercial arbitration that will familiarize students with the legal framework, the role of the courts and arbitral institutions, the main elements of effective arbitration agreements, the selection of the tribunal and challenges to members of the tribunal, jurisdictional issues, interim measures, pre-hearing procedure and the conduct of the evidentiary hearing, the award and how it may be challenged or enforced.

International Business Transactions [6 credits]

This course will use case studies to analyze international business transactions including: forming the contract, financing and payment techniques, and identifying and addressing barriers to contract fulfillment. Examples will include the study of import/export of goods and services, technology transfers, joint ventures and foreign direct investment. The course will also address the challenges of trans-border electronic transactions and doing business on the internet.

Advanced Contract Law [3 credits]

This course explores two areas of increasingly important and challenging global regulation: anti-money laundering legislation and international country sanctions. While important to a broad sector of businesses, they are particularly crucial for financial institutions and businesses involved in cross-border commerce. This course explores the global context for these regulations, including the role of international legal and quasi-legal organizations such as the Financial Action Task Force and the United Nations. The role of anti-money laundering and country sanctions within the context of financial sector regulation and stability overall will be explored, and students will have an opportunity to examine the outcomes, including relative strengths and weaknesses, of the legislation on a domestic and international basis.

Other Elective Courses

Elective courses can be drawn from International Business Law courses or other Professional LLM specializations. Students may take electives from the Canadian Common Law program, which have been designed to meet the requirements of the National Committee on Accreditation (NCA).

Note: Not all courses are offered every year. Faculty, curriculum, course descriptions and degree requirements are subject to change without notice
