How well do you understand the complex world of human rights?

Failure to comply with human rights laws can be very costly for organizations, in money, time and potential reputational damage. Human rights issues continue to be front page news – from the continued impact of the #MeToo Movement and the rise in workplace harassment investigations, to the ongoing inquiries involving alleged discrimination in local school boards – examples are everywhere.

This comprehensive program – now in its ninth successful year – has been designed to give you the knowledge and skills to competently and confidently handle human rights issues.

The Osgoode Certificate in Human Rights Theory and Practice

New approaches to equality, diversity and inclusion ensure that human rights issues will continue to impact governments, public institutions and the private sector.

Are you prepared?

Found in every province and territory as well as federally, human rights legislation touches every individual and organization. Whether you're dealing with human rights issues in the workplace, the classroom or other settings, you need to understand how to interpret and correctly apply the appropriate regulatory framework to protect your organization, your employees and yourself.

This unique in-depth program is designed specifically for lawyers, human rights and human resources professionals.

Our highly distinguished faculty of practicing lawyers and academics with years of experience in this field will equip you with the knowledge and practical skills you need to competently and confidently handle day-to-day challenges, as well as more complex human rights issues.

Online lectures will be supplemented by simulations, case studies and hands-on workshops providing a practical, skills-focused online learning experience.

“What a phenomenal program! Each day has led us into a much richer understanding of such important issues and ideas.”

Laura Mae Lindo
former Director, Diversity and Equity Office,
Wilfrid Laurier University

DAY 3

May 18, 2022

9:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m. ET

Evidence in Human Rights Matters/ Simulation Exercise

This practical, interactive session will use the Kahneman “thinking fast and thinking slow” analysis to show how “embedded self-delusions” that impact decision-making can be overcome.

- Questioning assumptions in human rights matters
 - what mental processes shape our judgement about evidence in human rights fact situations?
 - when assessing evidence, how do intuition and emotion combine with deliberative thought?
- Record-keeping
 - highlighting best practices
 - special concerns with medical recordkeeping
 - dealing with concerns regarding electronic record-keeping
 - current complex issues in systemic discrimination and intersectional discrimination

Simulation: In the afternoon session on Day 3, participants will engage in an in-class simulation exercise of analyzing and attempting to resolve a workplace human rights dispute that has proceeded to investigative stage.

DAY 4

May 19, 2022
9:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m. ET

Evidence in Human Rights Matters (continued)/Remedies

Day 4 commences with a follow up and debrief of the Day 3 simulation exercise. This session focuses on exploring the experiences gleaned from the simulation exercise to better understand the concepts of systemic racism and sexism in the workplace. The learning outcomes will also be connected to the applicable case law.

In the afternoon, the focus shifts to the remedial powers of human rights tribunals. In addition to discussing the more traditional remedies of damages and/or reinstatement (for example, in a case of discrimination in the workplace), faculty will also explore what systemic remedies are available in such cases.

- Debriefing the simulation
- Writing a report in contemplation of a review – tips and tools
- Interplay between human rights legislation and other legislative provisions
 - employment standards
 - disability accessibility legislation
 - labour laws
- The remedial powers of human rights tribunals
- Systemic remedies: current examples of innovative solutions being crafted by human rights tribunals
- Damages
- Overcoming the practical challenges to enforcing human rights settlements

Here's what past attendees have said:

"The five days of intensive sessions were most rewarding. As a human rights practitioner, I got the opportunity to deepen my theoretical understanding of human rights law in Canada. Simultaneously, I gathered new skills in promoting the prevention of human rights violations at the post-secondary level.... Thanks to Pat Case for his vision and having the courage to step into the 'gap'."

Nancy Sims

Director, Centre for Human Rights, Equity & Diversity, Humber College

"I leave this program impressed, motivated and so much more knowledgeable on human rights issues. I will be recommending it to my colleagues unequivocally."

Laura Colella

Lawyer, Arbitrator, Mediator, Facilitator

"Excellent curriculum [provides] a better understanding of processes, rights, laws legislation and how they may impact the roles and responsibilities of each person.... One of the best certificate courses ever!"

Curt Woytiuk

Saskatchewan Government and General Employees' Union (SGEU)

"Patrick Case does a great job. Well organized program with lots of different and interesting sessions."

Curtis Fogel

Associate Professor, Brock University
